State Gives Advice

But School Money Has to Be Raised Locally

IF THE LATEST word from the Legislative Council sessions at Little Rock is the final one then you had better brace yourself for some cold facts about the public school tax picture.

Only now are we getting the full measure of the financial disaster into which the reckless policy and bad advice of the State Department of Education has plunged the local school districts of Arkansas.

A disaster which the educational high command sought to gloss over by frantically heaping the drums for ill-fated Amendment No. 41 in the general election last month.

State Comptroller Lee Roy Beasley told the Legislative Council yesterday that state commitments to local school districts will require an additional $6,000,000 for the balance of this fiscal year.

L. H. Autry, Mississippi county representative who is also school superintendent at Burdette, said the state might get by with an increase of only $5,000,000 in taxes—and then added this significant statement:

"A sales tax—with an emergency clause—is the only way we can find that $5,000,000 between now and July 1."

The sales tax Mr. Autry is talking about is the Hall law that now levies 2 per cent against all commodity dealings—in food, clothing, and the other necessities of life.

Increasing the sales tax to 3 per cent might or might not—raise the needed $5,000,000.

Mr. Autry himself doesn't think much of the idea for he stipulated in his talk before the Legislative Council that his opinion "did not necessarily" mean he would sponsor the required legislation.

THERE CERTAINLY isn't going to be any increase in the state sales tax.

This is a case where you can take the pitcher to the well but once. The 2 per cent differential in the cost of living set up for the people of Arkansas by the original Hall sales tax law is all the handicap our merchants and their customers can stand in competition with goods offered by adjoining states. Texas, 34 miles from Hope, has no general sales tax at all.

The school lobby tried the sales-tax-increase scheme in other years; and I warned you during the campaign on Amendment 41 last month it would try again.

Property—real and personal—was given relief back in the 1930s when the schools were bailed out of bankruptcy; with the Hall sales tax instead of raising assessments and increasing the ad valorem tax. But this time it is property's turn.

Under no circumstances will the Star support a higher sales tax, and it is our measured opinion that if the school lobby tinkers with the idea it will run the risk of seeing the whole sales tax law repealed.

We have gotten into this school crisis by the slipshod procedure of allowing irresponsible men representing the State Department of Education to come down to local school districts and advise them to inflate their operating budgets 300 or 400 per cent, on the promise that the state government would "pay the freight."

Now it develops that the state can't fulfill its promise.

The sales tax rate can't be increased—and even if it were, it's a 50-50 gamble whether a higher rate would produce more dollars than the present 2 per cent law. You would have to reckon with outraged shoppers, uncooperative storekeepers, and widespread smuggling of goods across the state line.

The only source for enough new taxes to permit the state to continue carrying the local school burden, that I know of, would be for Arkansas to seize the liquor business and set up a publicly-owned state dispensary system. That would produce probably 7 or 8 million dollars new revenue. But both the liquor people and the prohibitionists are opposed to it.

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to the warning this newspaper gave you during the campaign on Amendment 41: The basic solution for the school revenue crisis lies in property taxes.

The problem is not insoluble. Arkansas property can afford to pay part of the bill today, considering that it got relief through the sales tax back in the 1930s when times were hard.

But property taxes are levied locally. And if we've got to go back to supporting the schools locally instead of with state aid, then the budgets that the State Department of Education inflicted upon local districts will be thrown out the window.

Salaries of those actually teaching in the public schools must be guaranteed at the present levels. Taxes will have to cover them.

But the rest of the budgetary inflation will be stripped to the bone—the fate that befalls every organization when its promises outrun its performance.

Council Submits Two Plans for Redistricting

Little Rock, Dec. 29 — (P) — The Arkansas legislative council has passed on to the 1951 legislature two plans for reduction of Arkansas' congressional districts from seven to six.

There's one thing common to both plans. Each would force Rep. Boyd Tackett of Nashville, the Arkansas delegation's "freshman" member to run against a senior colleague if both should decide they wanted renomination.

In one case Tackett would have to run against Rep. Oren Harris of El Dorado. In the other, his opponent would be Rep. J. W. Trimble of Berryville.

The legislature is not bound to either of the two plans which the council voted yesterday to submit to it out of a total of 13 considered. The legislature may adopt either of the plans or any other it wishes. Probably additional alternative schemes will be presented.

Any plan adopted, of course, would mean that two incumbent congressmen would have to oppose each other for renomination if both wanted to continue in congress.

The redistricting will be necessary because of Arkansas' loss of population — on which the number of representatives for each state is based — between 1940 and 1950.

In one of the two plans sent on to the legislature yesterday, both Tackett's home county of Howard and Harris' home county of Union would be in the fourth district. Tackett represents the present fourth district; Harris, the seventh.

In the other plan, both Tackett and Trimble (Carroll county) would be living in a new third district. That's the number of the district Trimble now represents.

In the first plan — despite the realignment of counties — each congressman except Harris would be living in a district bearing a number corresponding to that of his present bailiwick.

That wouldn't be true of the second plan. E. C. Guthrie of West Memphis, Wilbur Mills of Kensett and Trimble still would be living in the first, second and third districts, respectively — the ones they now represent. Tackett also would be living in the third. Rep. Brooks Hays of Little Rock, now representing the fifth district, would be living in the fourth district, and Harris would be a resident of the fifth district, rather than the seventh.

Rep. W. F. Norrell of Monticello still would have a home in the sixth district — the same by number but not by identical counties that he now represents.

The school lobby tried the sales-tax-increase scheme in other years; and I warned you during the campaign on Amendment 41 last month it would try again.

Property—real and personal—was given relief back in the 1930s when the schools were bailed out of bankruptcy; with the Hall sales tax instead of raising assessments and increasing the ad valorem tax. But this time it is property's turn.

Arkansas Youth Dies in Wreck in Louisiana

Bastrop, La., Dec. 29 — (UP) — A 17-year-old Arkansas youth was killed and two companions seriously injured in a truck-train collision near Beekham, La., yesterday.

Dead was Billy Earl Norrell, 17, of Crossett, Ark. His companions, also of Crossett, were Ralph Stanley and Hilley Hiway. They were hospitalized in Bastrop.

All three were riding in the truck when it was hit by an Arkansas, Louisiana and Missouri train at a grade crossing 10 miles north of Beekham, authorities said.

Sheriff Robert Harp said Norrell died instantly. Stanley suffered a broken leg and internal injuries. His condition today was critical. Hiway had internal injuries.

Auto Industry to Cut New Car Output

Detroit, Dec. 29 — (P) — The auto industry got ready today to cut output of new cars at the start of the new year. National emergency demands will force curtailment.

Production cutbacks will cause layoffs of a large number of auto workers. The unemployment, however, is expected to be only temporary as the industry converts to defense production.

The car makers said government restrictions on use of critical materials make the cutbacks necessary. The trade paper Automotive News said the cutbacks will range from 20 to 30 per cent throughout the industry in the early months of the new year.

Four companies have announced plans for cutbacks. They are General Motors, Packard, Ford and Studebaker.

General Motors said a week's shutdown at its Linden, N. J., plant would idle some 3,000 workers. The plant is to close next week and reopen Jan. 8.

Packard Motor Car Co. announced it will curtail auto production approximately 20 per cent starting Jan. 2. The firm will lay off 1,800 workers here. Packard has been producing about 550 cars daily.

The Ford Motor Co. Lincoln-Mercury division announced a cut in car production from 440 to 280 units a day at Metuchen, N. J. more than 1,000 workers will be idled. This will bring total layoffs in Ford plants throughout the United States to about 13,000.

Studebaker Corp., at South Bend, Ind., has announced a 20 per cent cutback of automobiles and trucks during January.

Any further cutbacks in production are expected to hit the Detroit area the hardest. Although the auto industry has received an estimated $1,000,000,000 in defense contracts recently, most of the work is to be done in plants outside Detroit. So far most of the defense production has been assigned to new plant facilities with a minimum of interruption to auto output.

Automotive News reported it all depends on the foreign situation whether cutbacks will become more severe later in 1951. The trade paper estimated 1950 production at slightly over 8,000,000 cars and trucks. This is an all-time record by more than 1,000,000 units.

Telephone Rates at Stuttgart Increased

Little Rock, Dec. 29 — (P) — The Arkansas public service commission has authorized an increase of some $24,000 yearly in local telephone rates at Stuttgart.

The Southwestern States Telephone company instituted the new rates and began collecting them on a temporary basis — with a surety bond to guarantee refunds for customers if the rates were eventually declared unjustified or excessive.

The city of Stuttgart filed a protest, but withdrew it earlier this week. Yesterday the commission made the new rates permanent.

Strength Is Key to Peace, Says Speaker Rayburn

Bonham, Tex., Dec. 29 — (P) — The United States intends to make itself so strong that foreign countries will be afraid to attack it, said House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

He said the U. S. intends to do this regardless of cost. Rayburn spoke in his hometown at ground-breaking ceremonies for Bonham's $470,000 low-rent housing project.

While the U. S. is planning to become the world's strongest nation, Rayburn said yesterday, "every leader is doing all he can to bring world peace."

Submits Plan to Revise Jury Selection

Little Rock, Dec. 29 — (P) — A legislator has followed up his assertions of jury fixing in south Arkansas counties with plans for a revision of jury selection laws.

Two weeks ago Rep. William I. Purifoy of Camden declared that jury fixing was prevalent in Nevada, Clark and Ouachita counties "and two or three other counties that I know of."

Purifoy said yesterday that when the legislature convenes Jan. 8 he would be ready to introduce proposed legislation which among other things would provide that: Jury fixing be a felony punishable by imprisonment of from one to five years.

No grant or petit juror serve at more than one term of court in any two year period.

Summoning of bystanders to fill deficiencies on regular jury panels be prohibited.

There be restrictions under which there wouldn't be a disproportionate number of members of the jury panel from any one county or township.

Qualification for jury service be tightened.

Three-man jury commissions be composed of one farmer, one laborer, and one business man.

Jury panels be selected by withdrawing of cards bearing individual names from the drum so fixed that it may be rotated and the cards shaken up.

The Arkansas legislative council authorize a study to produce corrective legislation after Purifoy made his charges of jury fixing. Results of the study have not been announced.

Court officials in the counties named by Purifoy defended selection of juries in their jurisdictions. Purifoy declared the responses did not contain a specific denial of his charges.

Other legislative proposals yesterday included one by Rep. Jack Clark of Miller County, who said he would introduce a bill to reduce the highway commission from 13 to three members with the terms to be staggered so one commissioner would be appointed each two years. He said he thought such a law would take the commission "out of politics" by removing it from the control of any one government.

Rep. L. H. Autry of Mississippi county suggested at a meeting of the legislative council that an emergency sales tax increase might be the only way to raise $5,000,000 to meet public school commitments between now and next July 1, when a new fiscal year starts. He said that opinion didn't necessarily mean he would sponsor such legislation.

He will also speak at services Saturday night and both services on Sunday.

U. S. Should Use Sabotage Says Wiley

Washington, Dec. 29 — (P) — Senator Wiley (R-Wis) urged today that the United States provide arms, sabotage materials, money and encouragement to underground groups inside Russia and Communist satellite countries.

Wiley, second ranking Republican on the senate foreign relations committee, said in a statement that Russian and Communist leaders have been trying for many years to "foment revolutions within the Western nations." Now, he added, America and other nations should give the Communists "a taste of their own vile medicine."

"All we need to stir up plenty of trouble in Russia, China and elsewhere is some daring leadership," Wiley said. "A counter-revolutionary program against communism would not cost a drop in the bucket compared with the billions we now spend."

He told a reporter later that his proposals would require no additional legislation or appropriations by congress.

The Wisconsin senator proposed that America set up a world-wide revolutionary movement against communism patterned upon "the Cominform" — the Communist International.

Declaring "there is scarcely a family in Russia that hasn't had a member or relative liquidated or forced into slave labor," Wiley said both that country and Communist China would be fertile fields for a "commando-type program of psychological and revolutionary penetration."

He cited Chinese Nationalist reports that there are "a million guerrillas" already in combat on the Communist-controlled Chinese mainland.

President Truman was asked at his news conference yesterday if there was any consideration of aiding Nationalist forces on Formosa stage an attack or help anti-Communist guerrillas in China. He said he could not comment.

U. S., Russian Split May Be Over Japanese

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Dec. 29 — (P) — A final split between Russia and the United States over drafting a Japanese peace treaty appears almost inevitable.

An exchange of notes between the two powers, the latest released here last night, disclosed several major points of conflict which diplomats doubt can be resolved. The United States shows every intention of pressing for a treaty regardless of Russia's attitude.

The American note released last night answered half a dozen questions which the Soviet Union had put to this government on Nov. 20 regarding American intentions on a peace settlement.

Points of difference which now emerge from the exchange are mainly these:

1. The United States rejects Russia's contention that any of the great powers should have a veto over the treaty. This means that if Russia will not go along on terms acceptable to this and other friendly nations, then the United States is prepared to go forward without Russia.

2. The United States is going ahead without consulting Communist China, despite Russia's emphasis on Red Chinese interest in Japan. It is pointed out that Washington has no diplomatic relations with the Peking regime. Moreover there is no current prospect that such relations will be established.

3. The United States considers that it is "reasonable" for Japan to participate with this and with other nations in arrangements for a Japanese defense which "could include provision for the stationing in Japan of troops of the United States and other nations."

4. The United States is standing by its proposal for a future decision. Either by the great powers or by the United Nations, on the status of Formosa. This is U. S. policy despite the 1943 Cairo agreement that Formosa should be restored to China. The Russians interpret that as meaning Communist China.

This country's view about Formosa as presented to Moscow appears to be that because of the Chinese aggression in Korea against United Nations forces, U. N. considerations now take precedence over the Cairo declaration.

The exchange of notes began on Oct. 28 when John Foster Dulles, then serving as an American representative at the United Nations, presented to Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik a set of proposals for drafting a Japanese treaty. On Nov. 20 the Russians submitted their questions, which in many instances were arguments against what the United States wanted to do about such matters as Formosa and Japan's post-treaty security.

Russia also raised the question whether some of the powers might conclude "a separate peace" with Japan.

Until modern times the city of Bangkok in Thailand was built largely on floating pontoons or on piles along the river Me Nam and adjacent canals.

Cobalt Control Will Hurt TV, Radio Industry

Washington, Dec. 29 — (P) — The national production authority today put sales and use of cobalt under tight controls to conserve the metal for defense purposes.

NPA officials said the action would hit the radio and television manufacturers "extremely hard" and would affect other civilian products as well.

Cobalt is unfamiliar to the average American but is used in many products. It goes into the manufacture of the speakers of radio and television sets.

Government Places Clamp on Loans

Washington, Dec. 29 — (P) — The government cut down sharply today on money available for private loans and forced strong new links for harnessing the national economy more firmly to the defense drive.

A federal reserve board order to its 6,885 member banks called for freezing $2,000,000,000 out of the loan market.

The board said its action would cut off a potential further increase of $12,000,000,000 in the already record-high volume of bank loans. This is because banks could have lent the $2 billion dollars over and over again.

The economic stabilization agency (ESA) announced that it will open 13 regional offices "to handle price and wage problems," a step apparently paving the way for stricter controls expected later.

The national production authority (NPA) decreed that the U. S. will take over immediately as sole importer and distributor of natural rubber. Since it already controls synthetic production this move puts the government in virtual control of all rubber.

NPA announced this new move last night only a few hours after it had forbidden hoarding of 35 essential materials, including lumber and paper. An NPA spokesman interpreted the "hoarding ban" to apply to newspapers.

The federal reserve board said it curb action was announced last night after banks had closed. Today the board called on industry for a more rapid switchover from civilian defense production.

The board's money freeze means there will be less to lend to business firms, or to individuals who want to buy houses, autos, television sets, furniture, stock market securities, or anything else.

There was nothing in the order itself to raise interest rates for those who manage to get loans. Neither was there anything to prevent banks from raising those rates although officials did not expect a rate raise.

The board's freeze was effected by raising "reserve requirements" — the proportion of deposits that member banks are required to post with federal reserve authorities as non-lendable reserves.

Reserve system member banks account for the great bulk of U. S. bank deposits and loans, although they constitute a minority of the nation's 15,000 banks. It is up to the state banking authorities whether to apply a similar freeze to the remaining banks.

The board's crack-down on its members with a compulsory freeze — which will cut bank profits by cutting their lending capacity — amounted to conceding failure for board efforts to get banks to hold down lending voluntarily.

Selects America's 10 Most Beautiful Women If They Lose Weight Here and There

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

New York — (P) — Jane Russell and Denise Darcel are among the "10 most beautiful if's in America."

The full title for this list is: "The 10 most beautiful women in America if they would only lose 10 pounds."

The list was chosen by Al Roon, "moulder and conditioner of bodies, health authority and reducing expert," who performed these services for the old Ziegfeld Follies, Earl Carroll's vanities, movie studios and television producers, and who is active today in physical culture work.

Roon made his nominations because, he says, women should begin to think of adding to their curves again, but they must be careful not to add too much.

He prefaces his list with the comment: "These women I have chosen are all beautiful. They would be perfect, just perfect, if they lost 10 pounds."

Here are his choices and advice for each:

Jane Russell — "Four inches too big through the pectorals muscles, both major and minor." (That's the bust).

Lana Turner — "Gorgeous, typically American, but needs general weight reduction."

Faye Emerson — "A general trimming down would increase her sex appeal and even add to her already wonderful charm."

Tallulah Bankhead — "Too much around the rectus abdominis region." (That's the waist).

Eleanor Steber, opera star — "Great as she is, if she trimmed down, if she concentrated on intercostal breathing (breathing through the chest) and intercostal exercises, it would improve her V-shape and even improve her voice."

Anne Jeffreys, star of "Kiss Me Kate" — "A reduction in the gluteus muscles, both major and minor, is indicated. That's her derriere."

Eloise McIlhenny, television star — "Wonderful charm and the face of a doll, but she must lose in the thighs and calves."

Sudden Enemy Thrust Dents East U. S. Line

By HAL BOYLE

Korean Front, Dec. 29 — (P) — U. S. Eighth army spokesmen tonight said a sudden enemy thrust through the east coast of the Allied defense line now be said to be contained.

The spokesman said the thrust was made yesterday by North Korean troops. It penetrated three miles into United Nations positions near Chumchon.

He blamed "communication facilities" for an earlier report that the enemy had driven 10 miles below the 38th parallel.

The spokesman said the thrust was "contained" and "There is now a dent in the line extending four or five miles from the 38th parallel in a limited area."

"But our forces have been attacking steadily and the thrust can now be said to be contained."

Tokyo, Dec. 29 — (P) — Korean Reds gauged a thrust in the United Nations line in east-central Korea. An Eighth army spokesman said tonight.

"The attack can now be said to be contained," the officer said. The 10,000 Korean Communist troops suddenly thrust into the mountain country of Puyong, on the 38th parallel, 35 miles inland from the coast.

Associated Press Hal Boyle said a spokesman in Korea called the thrust "contained" and said now a dent in the line, four or five miles below the 38th parallel in a limited area.

"Our forces have been attacking steadily and the thrust can now be said to be contained."

The 150-mile-wide war just west of the parallel arbitrary dividing the North and Republic of Korea.

Gen. Matthew B. Ryan, U. S. Eighth army commander, expressed "complete confidence" in the ultimate victory of United Nations in Korea.

SOCIETY

Phone 1200 or 1205 Between 8 A. M. and 4 P. M.

and voice. Three cash prizes of one thousand dollars each will be presented by the Federation to the winner of the first place in piano, violin and voice.

The winner of first rating in the State must be representative of the State and qualified to compete in the District Auditions.

District Auditions shall be held not later than three weeks before the National Auditions.

District Auditions shall be held in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Only those who intend to follow music as a career may compete.

Contestants must have reached their eighteenth birthday, but not yet their thirtieth birthday by April, 1951.

On the same date as the State Young Artists Contests, State Student Musicians Contests will be held in piano, violin, voice and organ. The requirements for these contests though not so exacting as the Young Artist Contest, demand a high grade of musicianship.

The large repertoire is not demanded nor concerts given, but the compositions listed are selected from the best representative musical literature of the various schools.

This contest is open to pupils from 16 to 23 years of age, inclusive.

There is no national contest nor award. For further information, write Miss Smith.

Talented young musicians in either group, and the friends of teachers of such young musicians are urged to investigate these contests.

Arkansas has much talent and it is highly desirable that it receive proper recognition.

Miss Andrews, Mrs. Gregg Feted

Mrs. George Green and Mrs. John Williams, Marianna, were hosts at an informal tea yesterday at 4 honoring Miss Mary Carolyn Andrews and Mrs. F. M. Gregg, Clarkdale, Miss.

The Green home was beautifully decorated with greenery, nandinas, and red candles.

Guests were: Mrs. J. McRae Andrews, Miss Mary Carolyn Andrews, Mrs. F. M. Gregg, Mrs. Harry Lemley, Mrs. Kindall Lemley, Mrs. L. M. Little, Mrs. E. S. Greening, Mrs. Fred Ellis, Mrs. C. D. Lester, Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, Mrs. John Clyde Hill, Miss Nancy Hill and Mrs. Clyde Hill.

DOROTHY DIX
Sharp-Tongued Fiancee

Dear Miss Dix: The girl whom I am going with makes me so ridiculous that I have been made the laughing stock of my crowd. I love this girl, but when I tell her so she always gets into a quarrel and it ends up by me getting the worst of the bargain. I am convinced that I can win her love if I am patient and bide my time, but is it worth the price I have to pay for being a goat of my crowd? Shall I continue to go with her or shall I find another girl who will treat me decently?

J.L.A.H.
Answer: Very likely the girl is in love with you and her ridicule of you is just her defense mechanism. She may not want to marry and settle down right now, so she scoffs at love. Or you may not be just the type of man she thought she would fall in love with and she is fighting against the attraction you have for her and won't admit it. But whatever her reason for making you the butt of her jests, your technique in handling the situation is all wrong.

Give Her Own Medicine
Patience is not your play. Nor is submission. Neither is humility. What she needs is a dose of her own medicine. Turn the tables over her. Treat her rough. Wiserack about her tats. Make sport of her dancing. Take it from me, soon, and I've been a woman a long time and know all the answers to the secrets of the feminine heart, no woman ever falls in love with a man whom she can make look ridiculous.

Anyway, don't you think that a girl who finds pleasure in tormenting you and holding you up as a figure of fun before your crowd is a mighty poor bet as a wife? There is something essentially cruel in the nature of any one who finds pleasure in wounding the self-love of another and who is willing to stab to the heart one who loves her for the sake of getting a laugh. And if I were you I should not let myself in for a lifetime of being my wife's stooge.

What a man wants in a wife is a woman who will put him in an attractive light before the public, not one who will make him something to laugh at. So I should advise you to pass up the humorous lady in favor of one who appreciates your good points instead of turning the spotlight on your weak ones.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a widower 37 years old with two children, one 8 and one 10. I am very much in love with a young girl 21 years old and she loves me and is willing to marry me. Her mother objects very strongly to our marriage and is doing everything possible to prevent it. We are thinking of marrying secretly as we feel that is the only way we could prevent scenes, as the mother has threatened several times to make trouble if we marry. Is this a wise thing for us to do?

PERPLEXED
Answer: I think the girl's mother is right in doing everything she can in trying to prevent a highly inadvisable marriage, and that if she succeeds in breaking up the affair, both you and the girl will live to thank her.

To begin with, sixteen years is entirely too much difference between your ages. But if you were a bachelor, that would be your affair and you would have the right to take the risk of marrying a woman so much younger than yourself.

But when a man has children he has no right just to consider himself in choosing a wife. Their happiness and well-being come before his own and he should not jeopardize their whole lives by putting over them an unfit woman who takes the place of a mother to them.

The roles of the stepmother is the most difficult one that any woman ever undertakes. It requires almost superhuman wisdom and patience and self-control, all qualities that no very young girl possesses.

No young girl is fit to be a stepmother, and if you marry one you will bring sorrow down upon your own head, for you will live in a house of perpetual bickering and quarreling between her and your children. You will be constantly called upon to arbitrate the differences between them and you will be torn in pieces between them.

Dear Miss Dix: Will you please give us your opinion of the long versus the short engagement.

THE GIRLS
Answer: I think a long engagement is a mistake; that it is very trying on the nerves and affections of both the man and the woman, for it puts them in an unnatural position. They are neither bound nor free. They have not the authority over each other that a husband and wife have, yet they feel they have a right to control each other's actions. Furthermore, they are taking a long shot on the future and binding themselves to do something they may not want to do when the time comes.

Dear Miss Dix: What are the advantages and disadvantages of a late marriage.

WALTER
Answer: That early marriage does not make for happiness is abundantly proved by the fact that it ends far oftener in divorce than does the marriage contracted later in life. Development is determined by Nature, not by propinquity. The kind of men and women we grow into depends upon our heredity, our education, our brains, the way we were trained in babyhood, and it is just chance when a boy and girl start out with the same mental and moral equipment, the same background and develop along the same lines.

Youth Not Adaptable
Nor is there any truth in the other sentimental theory that young people can adapt themselves to each other better than older people. Nothing in the world is so unadaptable as youth, because youth is pure selfishness and arrogance. It takes time. It takes age. It takes experience. It takes battling up against the world to teach us the folly of trying to break down stone walls instead of walking around them.

So those who marry late in life need not feel that their waiting has been a total loss. They may not have quite so many illusions, but they will have a lot better chance at happiness.

Then they will know they are getting what they want in a life companion, instead of gambling on it as the young do. The men and women they marry will be mature. Their habits and tastes formed. They will be intelligent or dumb. Dependable or flighty. Domestic or play girls and boys. Extravagant or thrifty. Interesting or boring. Marriage will be a sure thing, not a grabbag proposition.

Furthermore, those who wait to marry until they are financially able to marry certainly stand a great deal better chance of making a success of marriage than those who marry on a shoestring, or no string at all. For staying together doesn't seem as romantic an adventure after marriage as it does before.

All of which adds up to saying that marriage, like all other good things, is worth waiting for and working for.

Dear Miss Dix: I have an only son 24 years old. He has been going with a fine girl — the very one I would select for him as a wife. But lately they have broken up because they do not feel they should marry without having something saved up. My son has a job which doesn't pay much, but he has had a couple of advancements for his work. Now the question is: Shall I give my son enough money so he and his girl can marry? I am in comfortable circumstances, but not rich. Should I give him this money now, or leave it to him when I die? Should I let him lose this splendid girl and maybe never marry? Should parents help their children, or would Help spoil them?

AN UNCERTAIN FATHER

Answer: Give the money to the boy right now so that he can marry this girl whom he loves and of whom you approve so highly. If they are forced apart now, it may be the ruin of two lives.

I believe that parents who are able should help their children to marry, just as they should help them get a start in business. For a girl to get a good husband settles her in life. For a boy to get a good wife is to give him not only the most steady influence and the greatest spur to his ambition that you can, but also to provide him with an invaluable working partner. And so the parents who can help their daughters to marry the worthy but poor young men they are in love with, and who can help their sons to marry the right sort of girls, make the best investments of their lives.

As to how much parents should help their children, that depends on circumstances. Fathers and mothers are very foolish when they give everything to their children and impoverish themselves. They should keep enough of their property so that they will always be independent and so that they will not have to live with their children, or be burdens on them, but after they have done that, they should not wait until they are dead to give anything to them.

Dear Miss Dix: I want to get married, but I know no men. My job does not bring me in contact with them. I cannot afford to travel and my vacations are limited. I've tried evening courses at the university for contacts, with no results. Each class was jammed with girls like myself, I presume, hunting for a husband. Can you help me? Or is it a lost cause?

CHECKMATED
Answer: I know of no particular spot where men who want to marry abound. The world is full of men, according to the census report, and every girl has to take her chances in catching one. It is just a matter of luck.

time when measured against the breadth of history) after Columbus' historic voyage, another daring, epic-making trip was to be made. This time it wasn't a sailing ship but a space ship. And the destination wasn't the Indies — but the Moon. Yes, it was "Destination Moon" and its glorious, human story is told in George Pal's Technicolor picture of that name which will be shown starting this Sunday at the Saenger Theatre.

In the blackness just before dawn, at 3:50 A.M. to be exact, our first Moon-bound crew of four courageous men board the space ship "Luna," seal the outer doors against the vacuum of space and take up their station on the horizontal couches. They contact the ground crew by radio. Final time checks are made. The radar-man touches the button that sets off the two-minute warning signal.

Each of the four faces tells its own story of hope, strain, tension and fear. Jim Barnes, the country's top industrialist; General Thayer, a missionary for space travel; Dr. Cargraves, unquestionably the leading atomic scientist, and a young technician who beyond his own specialization cannot possibly conceive what is going through the minds of his three older companions; the four of them, each in his own way, facing the unknown.

The count-off begins — 30, 29, 28, 27, 26, . . . each man watches his instrument panel . . . each braces himself, anticipating . . . 14, 13, 12, 11, 10, 9 . . . perspiration sparkles on their upturned faces. . . 3, 2, 1, Fire!

A terrifying roar splinters the desert night. A hissing maelstrom of dust and debris envelopes the blast-off base. Hesitant at first, the great silver hulk rises slowly from its base.

Inside the control cabin the four travelers sink into their crash-couches as acceleration rapidly increases. The huge space ship rapidly gains speed, and in less than 4 minutes passes the altitude of 800 miles — racing at a speed of 7 miles per second, it bursts the restraining chains of gravity and is in space.

Within the cabin there is a brief blinding flash of red. Instantly it is replaced by glaring white light. The brilliant sun rays splash through the port-hole as they streak outward through the brief strata of dawn into brilliant daylight. High in the sky, beyond the reaches known to man, suddenly there is dead silence. The blast-off is complete and they are now coasting in "free-fall." Man has done the impossible. He has left the bounds of the Earth and is on his way to another world!

Thus, with all the dramatic and colorful impact of a motion picture, "Destination Moon" gives us a preview of man's greatest adventure. Featured in the cast are Warner Anderson, John Ar-

Hogs, Aggies Play for Tourney Title

Oklahoma City, Dec. 29 — (AP) —

The Oklahoma Aggies seek their ninth all-college basketball tournament title here tonight against Arkansas — and the nation's No. 3 team is a heavy favorite for a number of good reasons.

The Aggies have a season's record of 11 victories without a defeat including two victories over Arkansas. In fact, the last time Arkansas was able to stop the Aggies was in 1944. Since that time,
A&M has won 13 straight from the Razorbacks.

While the Aggies have won eight tournaments, Arkansas still is seeking its first All-College title although it has been in the finals two previous times.

In 1942, Arkansas lost to Texas
Christian and in 1944 was stopped by the Aggies.

A&M covered to the finals last night by stopping Texas 47-38 while Arkansas had an easy time with Alabama 48-34 despite a cold spell at the bucket.

The title game is set for 9 p.m.
(EST) after Alabama and Texas play at 7:45 p. m. for third place.
Afternoon consolation games today finds Vanderbilt and Tulsa playing for the losers' cup while Baylor for Oklahoma City university meet for seventh place.

Vanderbilt nosed Baylor 54-53 in the consolation semifinals yesterday while Tulsa was beating OCU, last year's champion, 56-43.

In winning last night, the Aggies were off the pace they set in the tournament's opener Wednesday when they recorded a new team scoring mark by whipping Baylor 75-38.

But led by their scoring Ace
Gale McArthur who hit 13 points, the Aggies still showed more class than any other team in the meet in beating Texas.

The victory is the Aggies 43rd in the 50 games they have played since the tournament started in 1936.

Although the rangy Arkansas club couldn't find the basket, its 17 goals in 72 attempts still was enough to down Alabama. Alabama tried 52 shots and made 13.

Major Cage
Teams Come Through

New York, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Seven

major college basketball teams came through with victories last night, to stay on the dwindling list of unbeaten.

The major unbeaten lives who won last night are:
Duquesne (6-0) 60 Detroit 52.
Long Island U. (7-0) 77 Western Kentucky 70.
CORNELL (7-0) 59 Stanford 5
(overtime).
Cincinnati (6-0) 83 Xavier (Ohio)
70.
Oklahoma A&M (11-0) 47 Texas
38.
Navy (6-0) 60 North Carolina 49.
Wyoming (10-9) 62 Colorado
A&M 50.

Sherman White scored 30 points in leading Long Island to victory.
Arizona handed national champion CCNY its third defeat, 41-38, in the opener.

Oklahoma A&M will play Arkansas tonight for the Oklahoma City tournament title. Arkansas ad-

Presbyterians to Observe Student Night

Sunday is a day for College Students throughout the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.
The church recognizes its students by setting apart the last Sunday in the year as Student night.
This day is for the purpose of strengthening the ties between students and their local churches it is for the purpose of challenging the local church to fulfill its responsibilities in supporting student work in the church.

Miss Rita McCaskill, student at Southwestern in Memphis, has been appointed chairman to arrange a program for the evening service at 7 o'clock on the theme "My Life, His Plan Our Mission" and several of the college students home for the holidays will have parts. The local Youth Fellowship will sing in the choir.
